MEET JEFF

Jeff is majoring in Anthropology.

The military veteran previously attended community college before finding his way to Penn State to pursue an integrated undergraduate-graduate degree (IUG) in Anthropology. He previously worked at the Matson Museum of Anthropology, located on campus in Carpenter Building, where he ensured an accurate catalog of thousands of pieces of material culture and skeletal remains.

As a course support member for the Department of Anthropology, Jeff collaborates with instructors to make technical and creative decisions that will help improve the classroom learning environment. He also uses his camera skills as a photojournalist for the United States Air Force Reserve.
